Elsa and Juliette struggle to get by. As single moms in the city, everything is a challenge – especially paying the rent. So, why not move in together? Three kids and two parents make one happy family, right? They manage to find the perfect apartment, but there’s a catch. It is too big and too expensive for the two of them. Enter Mathieu. Stranger, single dad and third flatmate. As the kids come to terms with their awkward new household, their parents find themselves in an uncomfortable position themselves. It turns out Mathieu is not a stranger at all. Several years back, he and Juliette had a one-night-stand. They’ve vowed to hide this from Elsa for the sake of their unorthodox arrangement. But they can’t hide their past liaison and their growing attraction forever.
